A youngish businessman in his late twenties was right behind me and I could see half his face behind my head in the reflection. I wasnt sure it was him until ours eyes made contact in the glass and he held my gaze. At the same time I felt his fingers begin to rub my crack and move down towards my balls. My face flushed red with embarrassment. I realized that he must have figured out from the way he stroked my ass that I was wearing a jock. I took another look at him in the window. Damn, he was hot. He looked like the kind of guy who spent his days at the office and his weekends at the beach surfing or playing in a band. He had medium length hair cut in in a trendy style but was wearing the salaryman uniform of dark suit and white shirt. He wore fashionable thick black-rimmed glasses and I could see in the reflection that he had full kissable lips. We were starting to pull into the next station and I was conflicted about what to do. Should I get out and try to change cars? Or maybe try to move away from him. My brain thought one thing and my cock another. I was already hard from his touch. The doors opened and before I could debate what to do any further, three people were trying to push their way into the car. Somehow the mass of people absorbed the new comers and I was pushed further back into the crowd, slightly to the side no against the wall of the drivers compartment, with my molester still firmly behind me. His hand had remained on my ass the whole time.
