

Just Do It, Kid is the third book in a three-part series. It is a continuation of Book 2—Hang In There, Kid. Let's face it. It's not easy being a teen or pre-teen today. Their lives are guaranteed to be challenging and confusing. Everywhere they look, they meet kids their age making bad choices. Wouldn't it be great for them to learn how to make good decisions when they face tough situations? Well, we all know they don't always feel comfortable asking parents for advice. Instead, they ask friends, who often provide bad advice. Wouldn't it make their lives easier if they had an essential survival guide on how to make wise choices and deal with difficult situations? The series of books Don't Sweat It, Kid, Hang In There, Kid, and Just Do It, Kid, provides stories of teens and pre-teens and their good and bad experiences resulting from their choices. Each chapter provides clear, straightforward, easy-to-understand advice about difficult and confusing subjects that are all a natural part of growing up. Some of the topics in Just Do It, Kid include: Showing Respect Peer Pressure Violence Optimism Integrity Accepting Discipline These books help prepare teens and pre-teens to make good choices that lead to a bright future. The author, Joyce Willard Teal, is a graduate of Prairie View A & M University. She is a retired, award-winning Dallas Independent School District teacher. Dr. Teal, who has a degree in counseling, also taught school in New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Georgia and Virginia.
