

Every year thousands of businesses lose Billions of dollars to data theft from hackers, malware and their own employees. Many small business owners mistakenly believe that they're too small to be a target in the ever-growing world of malware intrusion and data theft. Nothing could be further from the truth! In fact, over 31% of all successfully hacked businesses were those with less than 250 employees. In 2013, industry experts recorded more malware created in a single year than in the previous 20 years combined. As a business leader, ask yourself: How prepared am I to face this growing threat to my business? Are you willing to ignore these threats for another year and hope that whatever you have in place will protect your network? This book is intended for the owners and managers of small to mid-sized organizations that don't have the time or the resources to allocate to protecting their most valuable business asset - their business data! Our goal is to help you understand the threat you face and guide you toward building a better malware defense system for your business.
