

The Loneliest Man in the Mountains, #11, The Traherns, a Western Historical Pioneer (The Trahern Western Pioneer Series)

Nancy Radke writes characters that are memorable and even teach you a bit about the human condition (what a person needs and desires). It was also great to find a writer who can compose a story with a completely different voice. This being the second story (I'm already working on a third) of novellas I have read, the Trahern series has a distinct voice, very different from her Sisters of Spirit series (which I highly recommend!). Matthews brother brings Heros colts out to Trey. He finds out why animals and men make good companions. He discovers why he who finds a wife, finds a good thing.
