

Satellite Repair Manual

Martin T. Pickering wrote the first edition around 1990 when he was working for Eurosat Distribution near Birmingham, England. At the time, Martin was repairing UK analogue satellite receivers 6 days a week. By the time he published the final edition, Martin had repaired around 25,000 receivers and the book listed all known common faults and cures for the analogue receivers available up till that time. Since UK analogue satellite TV is no longer broadcast, the book no longer has much practical value but it might have sentimental and rarity value.
